CENTCOM Integrated Operations Through Exercises and Training

Colonel Ted Bale
Deputy Director, Exercises and Training

1 April 2010

ng of Integrated Ops at USCENTCOM

CCJ7 views integrated operations during training and exercises to include Interagency and Coalition participation

- Interagency participation is important for the "Whole of Government" approach
- USCENTCOM exercises are designed to encourage multi-national and interagency participation
  - military, ministries, and international partners
- USCENTCOM regularly conducts exercises and training as part of a Regional Security Architecture
  - Building partner capacity
  - Improving communication and relationships
  - Develop and exercise access and contingency planning

Integrated Ops Lessons Learned

+ Interagency participation enhances exercise realism and improves expected results
+ Coalition participation improves overall mil-to-mil relations, enhancing US interoperability, AOR access and security

– Interagency capacity to support exercises often limited by personnel and funding shortages
– Interagency needs training objectives, and they must be facilitated in scenario to ensure future participation
